CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor—Allow me now that the nomination is over and I see in the field two candidates for the Mayor of Coleman to say I think it would be wise to point out to the electors the responsibility of their choice in selecting a Mayor, and beg of to select their Mayor in the man who has helped to make Coleman what she is today and not place this responsibility on a man who may be a good man, but perhaps a man without any experience in Municipal government, and as we all know the weighty matters which has for some time been before the village council, and matters which to a man without experience would more than likely be most disastrous to the new incorporated town. I am speaking without prejudice in this matter, and should an inexperienced man be elected to the position, I feel sure that the results will be disastrous.

I beg to remain, Yours,
RATAPAYERS.

RATEPAYERS' HOLD MASS MEETING

Discuss Plans for Celebration and Debate Issues in the Coming Election.

The largest public municipal meeting in the history of Coleman was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening. A. Cameron took the chair at 8.30 and P. Willmott was elected secretary for the evening.

Mr. Cameron opened the meeting by stating the object of calling the ratepayers together. First on the list was the celebration question. He called for discussion.

It was moved by E. W. Parish and seconded by Henry James that a celebration be held in honor of Coleman becoming an incorporated town. Various plans for the program and arrangements were set forth by Messrs. Price, Hilling, James, Oumette, Price, James, Swann, Whiteside, Cameron and Manly.

The date for the celebration also came up. O. E. S. Whiteside deplored the fact that we had at present too many enforced holidays and suggested that we name a fixed statutory holiday for our natal festivities.

It was then moved by D. Hyslop and seconded by P. Kane, that a committee of eight be appointed and that October 31st, be named as the day for celebration, and also that the committee devise ways and means to raise sufficient funds for the proper carrying out of the program. Carried.

The following gentlemen were appointed on this committee. Messrs. Hilling, Davies, Oumette, Price, James, Swann, Whiteside, Cameron and Manly.

L. A. Manly brought up the question of an election by acclamation. But there was no response. There was in evidence a plain determination to have a poll.

It was moved by T. B. Brandon, seconded by R. B. Buchanan, that a vote of thanks be tendered to the retiring councillors for their services to the town of Coleman. Carried unanimously. Councillors Cameron and MacDonald replied in suitable terms.

A discussion followed on those who have a right to vote. Those taking part in this were Chairman Cameron, Returning Officer Gate and Messrs. Hyslop, Steele, James and Hilling. These points being cleared up

Coleman's Opportunity

Several applications are now in the hands of the License department of the Attorney-General's department, asking for a wholesale license for the town of Coleman. The MINER takes the position, that while deploring the manufacture of liquor, that Coleman is entitled to a wholesale license. It is no uncommon sight to see beer wagons trekking around Coleman's streets and avenues. The hawking of beer is not by any means a revenue producer for Coleman. A wholesale liquor store properly conducted and run strictly according to the statutes is most desirable. The License Commissioners can act in this manner, feeling that they have the support of Coleman's citizens.

Ex-Const. Parker Arrested

Frank Parker was arrested at Phoenix on Saturday night, charged with being a deserter from the R. N. W. M. P. The arrest was made by Corp. J. B. Hall an officer of the R. N. W. M. P.

Parker is said to have deserted the police force at Coleman, Alberta, last June, and has since kept himself secluded. Having pugilistic aspirations and being of likely physique he drifted into Phoenix where Nelson about two weeks ago to arrange a bout with Bob Foreshaw the Phoenix heavyweight boxer, and the date for the mill was set for the 15th of October next. But the noise of the coming bout which appeared in the press gave the police a line on Parker's whereabouts. For the past two weeks he has been cooking for an extra gang on the local branch of the C. P. R. and the arrest took place at the crew's apartments. Parker's wife being with him at the time. He was brought to Frank Monday and the big fight will probably be wiped off the slate.

Automobile Crosses The Rockies

The first automobile to cross the Canadian section of the Rocky mountains reached Coleman on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The party remained in Coleman five hours, replenishing the machine with gasoline and taking a needed rest themselves.

The itinerary consists of a trip from Cranbrook to Alix Alberta. Probably the most dangerous and exciting section of the journey lies between Michel and Coleman. Owing to bridges being down two fords had to be made across the Elk river.

The party consists of Messrs Dr. Green, Beatty, Staples and Supple. All are prominent citizens of Cranbrook.

NEW BUILDING

The Coleman Liquor company intend to erect a large and commodious building on First St. just one door East of Opera house. The building will be 20 by 20 and will be two storeys high. This will be erected immediately if the application of the Coleman Liquor Co. for a wholesale liquor license is granted.

This company has secured a waiver of the Coal company's restriction regarding the sale of liquor.

A. Paterson, L. A. Manly and Martin Dufour have been elected directors. A. Paterson has been appointed company agent. It is the intention of the company to build a basement and ice house next year. The plans already submitted call for a frost proof building.

Flash Life in the Suburbs
Citymutt—Do you have electricity in St. Yurast?
Suburb—Yes, when there's a thunderstorm.

Recognized as the leading specific for the destruction of worms. Mother Graves' Worm Expeller has proved a boon to suffering children everywhere. It seldom fails.

A teacher in a Midland town is noted for his patriotic fervor. One day in class, while in a particularly uplifted mood he turned to one of his pupils, an average boy of twelve.

"Now, Tommy," said he, "tell me what you think of the British Empire." "I should think," replied Tommy, "that she was a good one."

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Striking Example of its Cure by The Tonic Treatment.

St. Vitus dance is the commonest form of nerve trouble which afflicts children, because of the great demands made on the body by growth and development, and the added strain caused by study. It is when these demands become too great that they impoverish the blood, and the nerves fail to receive their full supply of nourishment, the whole system becomes debilitated, and St. Vitus dance is the result.

The first child of a family to be afflicted with St. Vitus dance should lead parents to give their children this great blood-purifying medicine at once, and the result of the approach of the disease. Pale, listlessness, inattention, restlessness and irritability are the first signs of the disease. Early action that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demands made upon them.

Victor, Man, says: "When my little girl was six years old she was attacked with St. Vitus dance. Her limbs would jerk and twitch. Her speech became affected, and at last she became so weak that she could scarcely walk, and we hardly dared trust her alone. She was under the care of a doctor, but in spite of his treatment she grew worse, and we were about to give up when we were told of the Williams' Pink Pills had cured a child who was afflicted with St. Vitus dance. We bought a box of Williams' Pink Pills and gave them to her. After the use of a few boxes, to our great joy, we were helping her. After the use of a few weeks more her speech fully returned, and she was able to walk and run as well as any child of her age. When illness comes to one of our family now, we buy a box of Williams' Pink Pills, and the danger is past."

SCOTLAND YARD.

In the great, rather grim, red-brick building which, like a medieval fortress, dominates the Thames between a stone's throw of the Houses of Parliament, there is a large, lavishly furnished room, which holds more secrets than any other in London, with the possible exception of the room of Cabinet Ministers. It is the nerve centre of England's great and complex detective system, which controls the currents radiating all the world over for the discovery of crime; and it is in this secret chamber that the members of the Council of Scotland Yard meet to discuss the most important cases of the day.

CONSERVATION OF MONEY

Nelson, B. C. Sep. 29.—A new and important slant to the conservation discussion is contributed by M. Freeman, of Lethbridge, managing director of the National Resources Securities company, limited, who has been spending three or four days in Nelson one of his periodic trips. Mr. Freeman's theory is that common method of clearing land by burning is wasteful to a degree and that instead of clearing being a source of expense to the settler in the majority of cases it should be a source of revenue. The theory has stood the test of two years' trial on the big track of fruit land owned by the National Resources Securities company in the vicinity of Nakusp, on the upper Arrow lake. The company has cleared a considerable tract of land at a profit, and now has a steam pump-work, and has contracted to clear and improve about 100 acres more.

The new scheme for the conservation of dollars for the settler was thus elaborated by Mr. Freeman when he was interviewed on the subject.

SELL THE POLES

"The settler to-day is burning up not only timber valuable for saw logs, but cedar poles in considerable quantity, useful for fencing land, both of which have a market value when delivered at water or rail point. The reason for this is that he does not realize that there are purchasers for this material, or that in many instances it can be laid down at saleable points cheaper than it can be destroyed by fire.

"My actual experience in clearing land for the Arrow Lake Orchards, Ltd. illustrates this contention. I purchased this timber, cedar poles, etc., and found a market for it to the extent of some thousands of dollars in the course of the last two months, all of which would have been a total waste if destroyed by fire under the ordinary system of land clearing.

"The difficulty is due to the fact that the settler is not in touch with the purchasers of these materials. I would prescribe as a remedy for this condition the posting of notices along the lakes, by prospective purchasers, advising the settler what this material is worth along the lake shore.

DEPLETING SHORES

"Under the present system it is only a matter of time when the settler will have to leave his own land and hunt for firewood on adjoining land. It is not looking very far ahead to see the shores skinned of timber and the settlers forced to go some distance back for firewood. Every settler who has a 10 acre tract has three acres at least of these materials and for an order of that size the C. P. R. will always supply the crew. The settler can convert his timber into saw logs, poles, posts and cord wood. The posts and cord wood must, however, be shipped by barge. The demand for posts will increase all the time.

"In many districts, particularly on the Arrow lakes, the settlers should be able to realize from $25 to $50 an acre from timber to use for timber, fence posts and telegraph poles.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Away to a good start.

The socialist party in Coleman is strong and more than that it will not be defeated.

Church politics should never be considered as a factor in any political fight.

These holidays come almost as often as the old time church holidays. Only in these days the worker has to pay the piper.

The citizens meeting on Tuesday evening augurs well for Coleman. The interest and public spirit shown by the ratepayers is most commendable.

The passing of the old council marks a historic landmark in our civic career. The old council did well. Coleman expects every man on the new council to do his duty.

We are pleased to note that two of the old council are seeking re-election. Their experience and administrative ability should be a practical everyday lesson for the new aspirants.

The completion of the wagon road to the B. C. boundary has already justified its existence by the appearance of overland automobiles. Traffic along this trunk road will become larger year by year.

Among the mill men whom Mr. Freeman knew to be willing to purchase these products were Mance, of Nakusp; Lindsay Bros. of Nakusp; P. Gallagher, of Summit; the settlers mill at Edgewood, and the Edgewood Lumber company, at Robson. In this connection, it was pointed out that if several settlers had posts or logs on the bench the mill people could send out a barge to pick up a load at various points, whereas no one job would be worth the trip.

SUCCESSFUL COLONIZING

Speaking of the company's own colonization scheme, Mr. Freeman said that in a period of 12 months, 75 settlers, chiefly from the prairie, had been placed on the land of the Arrow Lake Orchards, Limited, which consisted of a tract of 7200 acres of Burton City, McDonald creek and Posthall creek and the prospects were for as many more in the spring. Within two weeks a post office would be opened, and the spring would be a school. The company was improving considerable land for some of the purchasers who expected to go on it in the spring, some 60 acres being now cleared. One man had engaged to put in a settler's mill if he could get a site, and that had been now arranged.

"We had brought in six excursion parties this season," concluded Mr. Freeman, "and 100 per cent, have purchased land in the Arrow Lake Orchards. I expect to bring in from 15 to 20 excursionists to see the Nelson fruit fair."

SCHOOL FROCKS FOR YOUNG GIRLS

SEPTEMBER spells school to children who are anxious to return, and suggests fall sewing, to the mothers who are aware that a well-planned outfit will carry the youngsters through the "dear old golden rule days" with ease and attractive appearance.

You will notice that the simplicity that should characterize children's dresses is evident in these practical models from Paris. As for the materials, serge and linen are washable and good looking, and form good backgrounds upon which the suggestion of trimming is placed. Checked and striped fabrics rival the plain colors, and the introduction of washable guimpes and undersleeves give promise of freshness. Blue serge is shown on the first little girl. The bodice and skirt are comparatively plain, the entire effect depending upon the strains that are stitched on the skirt in horizontal bands and used to outline the top of the modified yoke line.

conventional roses in different shades of blue soutache, with a sprinkling of hand embroidery done in linen thread. In the 14-year-old model you will see striped material used effectively in combination with coarse linen. The bodice is made of two widths of material joined in the center, for allowance must be made for the sleeves. Notice the modified lower line, edged with braid. The square yoke is decorated with black velvet and buttons, and the sailor collar turns back from each side and gives a square of white linen as relief to the black and white costume. Tucked sheer linen forms the yoke and undersleeves.

green colors with a touch of old gold. With a lace-trimmed blouse the next model, which suggests the Russian, is worn. Bands of the same material outline the yoke line, the armholes and the divided pelum. A hint of the military is given by the ornament of embroidery and cord at the front. With this is worn a leather belt. In reality, it is almost a coat suit, giving warmth for cool autumn days, yet the completeness of a dress. Stripes, the latest cry from

A DRESS FORM MADE UP AT HOME

THE girl who makes her own clothes is ever in a state of utter despair when it comes to getting them fitted properly. Now, much has been written and said about fixing up dress forms, but not enough.

To begin with, take your hip and bust measurements. Then buy a form, which costs about 50 or 60 cents. This you want more for a foundation than for its shape in itself; for, candidly, their shape is their own and no more like that of a mortal being than man is like the moon. In buying, get according to hip measure; and do not buy one the hip measure of which is larger than your own, unless it is the smallest size made, getting from one-half inch to one inch smaller. Always bear in mind that you can fill out easier than you can cut out.

In taking your hip measure, draw the tape around the very largest part of your body, which should be from ten to twelve inches below the waist line, or about where the placet would end.

Now have a tight-fitted basque lining made; don't mind how many seams it has, and see that it fits you just so from your neck down to the point above mentioned. Carry the shoulder line out to the very edge of the arm, and, if possible, have it made over a new corset and fitted over as few clothes as possible in the way of undershirts, etc.

After you have your basque fitted and the seams sewed up with a very small machine stitch, proceed to fit it over your form. Nine cases out of ten it will go a far fit, but that doesn't matter. By the time you have finished filling in you are liable to find that the neck line of your new form will be about two inches above that of the foundation form, and the same way with the waist line. In adjusting this lining, use the bust line of the form as a guide. Buy about two rolls of padding cotton, which costs about 5 cents a roll. You may not need that much; you may need more. Now commence to fill in, not in big pieces, but in little bits, so that your lining will be smooth, packing in evenly but not too tightly. Take particular note of any peculiarities you may have, one shoulder higher than the other, or one hip, or maybe one side of the bust needs a little more attention than the other. It is all a question of judgment. Be careful to fill in under the arms, across the back, both at the shoulders and at the waist line. After you have finished and fastened up the front (sewing this with small stitches by hand), take measurements of your new form and compare with your own. If you find it in any way smaller, open up the front and fill in a little more. In this case, better to have it a quarter inch too large than a quarter inch too small.

Next, have it mounted on a stand, getting a carpenter to do the job, unless you have some one around the house who could do it for you. A stand on the order of those used to hold up cheviote-gown cases is about what you need, having the cross pieces at the base a little more than the stand be big enough that the completed form will be your own height. A form of this kind you will find of benefit too great to be expressed in words, not only for fitting, but for draping and designing waists.

Now for the girl whose hip measure runs smaller than the smallest form sold; the writer will tell what she did with one for herself. It was about an inch too large, and when it came to fitting skirts, was absolutely no good. The largest hump seemed to come on the side; so with a saw I cut out a long V-shaped piece, about a half inch at the bottom and tapering up to about four inches. A piece like this was cut from each side. As these forms are made of pressed paper, it was hard to fix on how to fasten the parts together, so I took three pieces of narrow tape, about four or five inches long, and with pins pulled the parts together and pinned the tapes over, running the pins toward the cut, right into the form. Now, if you should be rather flat in the back and large at the side, the same method might be tried in the back, only be careful how you cut, measuring carefully before. When you fit your lining, you could fill out any little cavities that might arise from the cutting.

In fastening the lining around the bottom, use pins, as the paper is too soft to take tacks, and it would be an utter impossibility to sew.

Use a very good, closely woven lining material for your basque. To those who must cut the form to meet measurements, great care must be taken when the form is being adjusted to the stand that the severed parts are not pulled apart.

Long Coats

ANOTABLE innovation this summer is the light, long coat for evening wear, chafing, but seen frequently in walking and driving styles. The principal materials are foulard, pongee and tussah, with a sprinkling of linen and very lightweight cloths. These coats are cut straight, without any curve at the waist. They fit tightly about the shoulders, however, and do not give at all a kimono effect. They are narrow about the bottom, having no flare. The fullness is gathered instead into a strap or a wide band, or the coat is cut at the knees and a straight bounce added.

Many of them have square or round sailor collars, some of them long enough to reach the waist line. Some of them have very long revers also, but the opening is narrow, showing not much of the bodice. They are very loose, especially for evening wear. Usually they have deep cowl-neck cuts in a material and color to match the collar and revers.

New Combinations

THE latest in color combinations is a dark red and a rather bright blue, no complaint as to color effect in the modish purple. This is very smart indeed, but be careful not to trim with either of these colors; black is the best, or some neutral shade.

Tiny gilt buttons are used, while the soutache effectively simulates buttonholes on cuffs and bodice, and crosses on the belt to suggest a buckle. Slightly full sleeves of figured swiss are gathered into cuffs. The guimpe is separate.

Coarse blue basket weave cheviot is the next frock for the smaller girl. A broad panel effect is shown in front; the side pieces are extended into bell-shaped sleeves, while through slots at each side of the front a scarlet belt is run. This echoes the color note of the trimming, for scarlet linen is used for the circular band at the top and as a finish for the sleeves. On this are huge Braid is used on the skirt to repeat the line of the sleeves. This, by the way, is always an excellent plan for trimming any dress.

Silver buttons trim the dark olive green frock of the central figure. A double line on the front panel and at the front of the deep hem effect give an effective decoration. Six of the dull silver buttons outline the sleeve, tucked yoke and sleeves are of batiste, and a band of Japanese embroidery outlines the top, showing variations of the Paris, are shown on the little frock that depends on the directions of the lines for ornamentation, for simplicity characterizes the practical, copyable model. Two bands of stripes outline a front panel and suggest a square neck. The cuffs of the three-quarter sleeves are edged with the same width of serge. Embroidery forms the guimpe.

Last of all, a dark-colored wool crepon with bands of embroidery on skirt and sleeves and a modified round yoke held in place by buttons and braid. A little frill of lace gives a touch of white at the top. The guimpe is of tucked linen, quite sheer. In this frock the skirt is pleated and the waist line concealed by the leather belt that must be considered a necessity in a little girl's outfit.

Here is a variety of practical suggestions that mothers surely ought to follow and daughters should be proud to exploit. So follow the lead, and send the young girls to school along an attractive modish way.

An English Boudoir Cap

THE so-called English breakfast cap is in reality a boudoir cap. We, in this country, know very little about this pretty article belonging to the well-dressed Englishwoman; to the probably in breakfast alone. It is a very nice little headpiece and how to wear it with its most appropriate setting. The breakfast cap is by no chance a dress affair, but merely regarded by the English-as is the matinee of the French-as a thing not to wear in public. They belong in the boudoir, in milady's own apartment, where she probably is breakfasting alone. The well-dressed and particular woman in the same the world over and it is an evidence of her good taste that she chooses to cover her head during this leisurely breakfast. Her gown is catalogued as "night dress," but its beauty of material and something in the cut and general manufacture give it a class between the American lingerie dress and the French woman's negligee. A close little model for the boudoir cap is shown in one of the pictures. A characteristic frill makes a becoming frame for the face, while the back is a more soft of all over and valance-like lace.

The latest in London is a model with a show of lace and ribbon on the left side, its top formed of stripes of tulle alternated with insertion to match a tulle ruffle round the edge.
